

If you're worried about your baby getting a flat head, you could always give him supervised tummy time while he's awake. That way he can still sleep safely on his back.

